CONGRATULATIONS FROM BRYAN.

The Commoner Declares New Leaders in State Stand for Definite Principles

The Commoner, William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, speaks just at the right time when it congratulates the Democracy of Pennsylvania. In an editorial in the issue of the August Commoner, Mr. Bryan says:

"The democracy of Pennsylvania took a long step forward when, at the recent meeting of its state central committee, it effected a complete reorganization of its affairs along progressive lines. Roland S. Morris, the newly elected chairman, represents the kind of democracy that stands for definite principles, and under his leadership the democrats of the great Keystone state are in a position to restore their lost party prestige and march forward to new victories. The democracy of Pennsylvania is to be congratulated."

In an editorial on "The New Democratic Party of Pennsylvania," the Philadelphia Public Ledger makes this comment: "The democrats are proceeding with skill and wisdom in reorganizing their party. The people of America have long suffered because they have cherished a strange fallacy. They have thought apparently that there is something automatic about the conduct of parties and of the government. They have relied upon the organization as an all-sufficient piece of machinery that will rule them without their personal attention and the result has been that parties have fallen into the hands of the least worthy citizens. The democrats at last find that there is positively no escape from personality in carrying on a party, and fortunately they have discovered what is, after all, a patent and and obvious fact, that it is necessary to have men of high moral character and aims in charge of even a political enterprise if the political party is to be worthy and competent to act as an agency of honest and efficient government. The 'traitors and traders' have been cast out and the Pennsylvania democracy is on a firm basis."

If you believe what Mr. Bryan says, give your support at the Primary election to D. W. Zerby, Esq., for State Committeeman. He represents just what Mr. Bryan stands for, and his opponent, Mr. Smith, represents the exact opposite.

It requires more than a little gall for a pretending Democrat to come before his party and ask for support when his whole purpose is to oppose everything that President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Former Chairman Guthrie, State Chairman Morris, Palmer and Wilson stand for, but that is what W. H. Smith of Millheim, the Guffey candidate for State Committeeman, intends doing. We want clean politics in Centre county, and to have it Centre county must be represented by men who are in sympathy with the National Administration and the state organization. Mr Zerby is in sympathy with these and everything else that is fair and decent. He is entitled to your support for State Committeeman if you believe the Democratic party is for any other purpose than to dicker with by Guffey, Donnelly, etc.

Overtures were made to two men in Centre Hall to become the Guffey-Donnelly candidate for State Committeeman from Centre county, and one of these has not been a member of the Democratic party for some time, and is now not a Democrat, but is registered under another party head. The proposition was made to these men by the Meek-Taylor and Brother Bert forces. The prospects for success in the undertaking looked so poor that the idea of taking up the fight was shunned How many others were approached before W. H. Smith of Millheim was loaded with the burden no one knows. The whole intention of the Guffeyites is to divide the Democratic party, and Mr. Smith was induced to put on the yoke, because, perhaps, he having been served by the Democrats in Centre county has no regard for his or the party's success in the future.

Little Brownie to be Social Center.

An important educational experiment is to be tried in the rural portions of Cook county, Ill. The experiment is described as an organized effort to make the one hundred and thirty one- and two-room schoolhouses, scattered all through the rural districts of the county, the centers of the whole social life of the community. At the same time the education of the children will be made practical; it will be worked out in terms of their daily life, and the active interest and help of their fathers and mothers will be enlisted.

The Centre county Odd Fellows will hold their annual outing and basket picnic at Hunters park on Labor day, September 1.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISORS.

New Act Provides for Election of Township Supervisors in Each Second Class Township.

About 1400 second-class townships of Pennsylvania must elect supervisors to have charge of the public highways in their districts this year, under the terms of the township road act of July 22, and judging from inquiries being made at the capitol, people in many districts are not familiar with the provisions of the law. All townships in Centre county are in the second class.

This act places the control of all township highways under the state highways department, which is proceeding to establish a bureau of township highways to assist the supervisors.

The act also changes the title of the supervisors from road supervisors to township supervisors and creates a system whereby the townships may receive standard plans and specifications for bridges and road construction and improvement advice as to the methods and such aid as may be extended by the engineers of the state.

Provision is also made by other acts for the payment to townships of a 50 per cent bonus on cash road tax collected.

Under the act the terms of the township supervisors are to be six years instead of three and four, as has been the case under former laws. At the November election one supervisor is to be elected for six years and one for four years, and then at each municipal election thereafter one for six years. One supervisor will hold over, it being provided that the terms of supervisors elected in 1909 and 1910 shall expire this year.

LOCALS.

Miss Mary Martz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Martz, was quite ill last week.

Miss Grieb of State College was the guest of Miss Hazel Emery from Saturday until Monday.

There is a demand for real estate If you want to sell your farm or town property advertise it in the Reporter.

Mrs. J. D. P. Smithgall and children and Miss Anna Stover went to Franklin, where Prof. Smithgall is principal of the public schools.

Among the new post cards on sale at the Reporter office is a bird's eye view of Centre Hall, Centre Hall Hotel, Old Fort Hotel. No better cards ever put on the market.

Miss Elsie Rearick is a guest of friends and relatives in and about Centre Hall. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rearick, now living in Lombardy, Kentucky.

Miss Tacy Kreamer arrived in Centre Hall from Philadelphia on Saturday, and is at the home of her father, Merchant H. W. Kreamer. Miss Kreamer is a seamstress, and with the Misses Geiss have built up a fine trade.

George Harvey Graden, who died in Lock Haven from the result of an injury by being struck by a fast Pennsy freight train, was a nephew of Nicholas Graden of Spring Mills. His age was thirty-nine years, and was a son of John Graden, who died in Lock Haven about a year ago.

The Freeport (Illinois) Bulletin contained this personal: George B. Crawford of near Lena was in the city, and was accompanied by Joseph Bitner, a brother-in-law, of Centre county, Pa. Mrs. Bitner and Mrs. Charles P. Krape, of Spring Mills, Center county, Pa., sisters of Mrs. Crawford, are visiting at the Crawford home also.

In Huntington county the question of license or no license will be the main issue at the November election, and candidates for the associate judgship will stand on one or the other platform. The anti-saloon element will have newspaper support, and this will aid them in getting right before the people.

If you are in sympathy with the present administration at the National Capital, it is your duty, Mr. Democrat, to attend the primary election and support D. W. Zerby, Esq., for state committeeman. This is necessary because the election of a committeeman actually takes place at the primaries, and not at the general election in November.

In another column of this issue reference is made to the cigarette law as defined by Judge Seibert of Perry county. It appears that a number of boys about town are boldly smoking cigarettes, and this is evidence that some one else about here is a violator of the cigarette law. There seems to be a hesitancy on the part of citizens to enforce this as well as some other laws for the public good, but Cyrus Brungart, one of Centre Hall's justices of the peace, had the courage to oblige a few youngsters to cast the weed. There ought to be more people willing to aid in enforcing this particular law, and the public ought to uphold anyone who attempts to do so.

THE RULES OF THE ROAD.

Privileges on the Highway that Will Serve Good Purposes If Observed.

A study of these few rules of the road will be of practical benefit to all who drive either horse or motor car, and likewise all who use the highways for foot purposes.

Although it is the general custom or rule for persons meeting in vehicles on a highway to pass to the right, yet this rule was modified by the supreme court of this state as follows: When a horseman or light vehicle can pass with safety on the left of a heavily ladened team, it is their duty to give way, and leave the choice to the more unwieldly vehicle.

Wherever sidewalks have been constructed in unincorporated towns, villages, or upon any public road, it is not lawful for any person to ride, lead or drive any beast of burden thereon, excepting that the owner of land in front of which a sidewalk has been laid may drive over or upon it.

A traveler may use the middle or either side of a public road at his pleasure, and he i not bound to turn aside for another who is traveling in the same direction, provided there be convenient room to pass on the one side or the other. It is only where two travelers meet about the middle of the road that the general rule of passing on the right is to be observed.

A public road is a way for foot passengers as well as carriages, but a foot passenger is bound to exercise ordinary care to avoid an accident. Drivers of vehicles are liable if they do not exercise ordinary care to avoid striking or running against foot passengers in a public highway.

Automobile drivers have the same rights on a public highway as others, but greater obligations are enjoined upon them. When necessary "to insure the safety of the users of the highway, an auto driver must sound a horn, bell or other signal device."

If the driver of a vehicle in passing through a crowded street injuries one lawfully on the highway, and did not use due care and precaution, he is criminally liable.

A Collision.

Thursday evening of last week there was a collision on the streets of Centre Hall. A motorcycle ridden by Clayton Homan and a horse driven by Miss Minnie Leaster met without ceremony under a street lamp to the front of the residence of T. L. Moore. In the buggy with Miss Leaster were Mrs. Leaster and baby boy. The latter two jumped from the vehicle, but fortunately received but slight injuries, Homan also escaped with a few bruises. The horse was injured the most, but not as badly as was first thought.

It is contended by Mr. Homan and others who saw the accident that he was on the right side of the street, and that the ladies turned their horse toward his machine instead of away from it, in other words turned to the left. A car had just past the vehicle from the rear, and two other cars were approaching, which may have confused the ladies.

WILL ENFORCE CIGARETTE LAW.

Judge Seibert Instructs Constables to Report Violations.

On receiving the returns of the constables of Perry county, Judge Seibert addressed the constables and pointed out to them the features of the cigarette law. A general summary of the Judge's remarks are reprinted, and they will be of special interest to constables and boys in Centre county because of the fact that Judge Ellis L. Orvis holds the same opinions, judging from his remarks while on the bench some time ago.

Judge Seibert referred to prior legislation on this subject stating that the Act of 1889 prohibited the sale of cigarettes to any below the age of sixteen under a penalty not exceeding $300; that the act of 1903 prohibited the sale of cigarettes or cigarette paper to any person under twenty-one years under the penalty of no more than $300 nor less than $100; and that the Act of 1905 amended the Act of 1903 so as to provide that "if any person shall furnish cigarettes or cigarette paper, by gift, sale or otherwise," to any person under twenty-one years of age, such person should be liable to a fine of not more than $300 nor less than $100. The judge then called attention to the fact that retailers had disregarded these Acts and sold to youths in defiance of them until public sentiment was so aroused as to bring about the passage of the Act of May 9, 1913, which repealed all the former Acts upon the subject and then provided as follows:

Section 1. That any person who shall furnish to any minor, by gift, sale or otherwise, any cigarettes or cigarette paper, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than three hundred dollars.

Section 2. Any minor, being in possession of a cigarette or of cigarette paper, and being by any police officer, constable, juvenile court officer, truant officer, or teacher in any school, asked where and from whom such cigarette or cigarette paper was obtained, who shall refuse to furnish such information, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and upon conviction thereof before any alderman, magistrate or justice of the peace, such minor, being of the age of sixteen years or upwards, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five dollars, or to undergo an imprisonment in the jail of the proper county not exceeding five days or both. If such minor shall be under the age of sixteen years, he or she shall be certified by such alderman, magistrate, or justice to the juvenile court of the county for such action as to said court shall seem proper.

Judge Seibert then instructed the constables that it was their duty to see that this law was enforced in every instance that came under their observation; that they were expected to perform that duty promptly and fearlessly and that the court would sustain them in so doing. He further stated that as some persons claimed that this law only applied to cigarettes the wrappers of which were made of paper he would instruct them that the word "cigarette" meant a little cigar, whether the contents were wrapped with paper, cornhusks or any other fabric whatsoever, and that all were under the ban of the law.

Governor and Senator to be Here.

Among the guests who will be on Grange Park during the Grange Encampment and Fair are Governor John K. Tener and Senator Boise Penrose. The latter will visit many of the gatherings in rural districts throughout the state in September and October. He wants to get in touch with the people.

Centre Hall Juniors Win.

The Boalsburg Boy Scouts and the Centre Hall junior baseball teams met on Grange Park Saturday afternoon to see which nine could give the best demonstration of the national game. The local juniors put it all over the Boalsburg lads, the score being 25 runs to 2. Twenty-one hits, including two two-baggers, one three-bagger, and two home runs, were made by the callow ball tossers of Centre Hall, as against five singles for the Boy Scouts. The sluggers were Fred Stover, with a home run and two singles to his credit; Norman Emerick, a home run and a single; "Bud" Stahl, single, two-bagger, and three-bagger; Carl Auman, three singles; Bradford, a two-bagger and two singles. Every other player on the team had at least one safety.

The batting order was as follows: Boalsburg—Shutt, c; R. Ishler, 1b; F. Ishler, ss; Meek, 2b; Rothrock, cf; S. Stover, 3b; Browse, lf; R. Stover, p; Young, rf. Centre Hall—Stover, 1b; Auman, ss; Bradford, 3b; Smith, p; Garis, c; Emerick, lf; Mitterling, cf; Stahl, 2b; Crawford, rf; C. Smith, c.

Centre Hall Juniors—
0 2 7 6 0 2 5 3 x—25

On Heckman's meadow, at Tusseyville, on Saturday, the Tusseyville baseball team defeated Linden Hall by the score of 10 to 2. Tusseyville won by superior all 'round playing, scarcely having an error to mar their work. Linden Hall was blanked up until the last minute of play, when they scored two runs as Tusseyville enacted a farce in retiring the last man in the game.

Pastor Sues for $25,000.

The Rev. John Erler, the deposed Lutheran minister of the church at Seven Valley, near York, through Jere S. Black, has filed suit in trespass against the Lutheran synod and church officials. He will demand $25,000 damages for illegal action on the part of those officials. There are some twenty or thirty persons to be sued.

Rumors reflecting on the character of Mr. Erler were put in circulation. These were investigated by the west Pennsylvania synod, which ousted him as pastor of the three churches, to which he had been previously elected.

Upon the advice of his counsel, he refused to vacate the parsonage. Mr. Erler says that the action on the part of the synod and the church officials was not legal, and he will ask for damages, including a considerable amount of salary withheld from him.

Mr. Erler is supported by a number of wealthy and influential citizens in the little York county town.

The dates of the Centre county Fair are September 2, 3, 4 and 5.

John D. Lucas and force of mechanics, after completing the Bartholomew building, will do remodeling on the United Evangelical parsonage, in Centre Hall, erect a large hog pen on the Capt. Boal farm, and then build a barn for D. Geiss Wagner to take the place of the one burned a few weeks ago.

Rev. George College has been stationed on the Penns Valley Methodist charge as a regular supply until a pastor is appointed by the next conference. He will live at Spring Mills, and will occupy the parsonage. Rev. College is a graduate of Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, and is a native of Williamsport.

Mrs. Mary Dinges on Monday attained the eighty-fourth year of her age. She is remarkably well preserved both in mind and body, and enjoys life as well as any one. She saw Centre Hall grow from a village of a few houses to its present proportions. Her home was one of the first substantial buildings in the town.

The station building of the L. & T. R. R. at Coburn has been enlarged and raised eighteen inches. A cellar has been dug under the building to place a heating plant, and the building on the western end has been extended thirty feet to make more room for the increasing freight traffic. Station Agent Campbell is very much pleased with the improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Goodhart and daughter, Mrs. D. W. Geiss, and little granddaughter, Martha Geiss, on Saturday returned from a trip to the middle west. They are all delighted with the country and tell of many former Centre county people they saw who are prospering, and others who have retired after having accumulated neat fortunes. Generally speaking the middle west is prospering and its people happy.

Messrs. M. B. Fiedler, F. K. Carter, and I. V. Showers, who last week were engaged on Grange Park building an addition to one of the exhibit buildings, are now at State College finishing the interior of the residence being remodeled by William H. Baird. These mechanics also did the general construction of the Baird improvements, which consisted of adding an additional story to one section, and generally overhauling the building.

The 1913 class of the Centre Hall high school, together with a number of high school students, had a delightful time in the Millheim Narrows Thursday of last week. It was a merry-making party of young people whose school relations bring them in close touch with one another. The trip to the picnic grounds was made in three automobiles—the Boozer-Fetterolf car, L. L. Smith's, and Samuel Durst's. In the party were: Misses Ruth Smith, Nina Slick, Helen Luse, Hazel Emery, Jennie Stahl, Laura Mitterling, Verna Rowe, Messrs. Ray Durst, William Reish, James Lingle, William Bradford, Alfred Crawford, and Henry Mitterling.

DEMONSTRATION FOR THE PRESIDENT

Both Parties to Give Him An Enthusiastic Reception.

A REBUKE TO HUERTA.

Congressmen Anxious To Show Wilson That His Efforts For Peace Have Their Support.

Washington.—A patriotic demonstration in support of President Wilson's attitude toward the Huerta government is being planned by members of both political parties in Congress. The occasion for the demonstration will be the appearance of the President in the House of Representatives to read his message explaining his efforts to end the troubles in Mexico.

It is intended that the President shall be given an enthusiastic reception when he appears in the House and that the enthusiasm shall not be permitted to wane during the course of his reading of the message Congressmen generally, without regard to party, are anxious to show the President that his efforts for peace have the support of the national Legislature and their cordial attitude toward these efforts will be intended as an emphatic answer to the intimations of President Huerta that he was satisfied from advices received by him from Washington that President Wilson's Mexican policy, and particularly his refusal to recognize the Huerta government, was not popular either in Congress or among the people.

Foreign Pressure On Mexico.

European diplomatic pressure, it is known here, is quietly at work in Mexico City in an effort to convince Huerta officials that the policy of the United States is being approved abroad. The failure of the Huerta government to obtain funds in Europe through the non-recognition of the United States is pointed to by the diplomats as likely to continue pending a more respectful consideration of the American proposals.

Bryan Sends Curt Warning.

Curt warning to both the Huerta and Constitutionalist commanders at La Boquilla, Chihuahua, Mexico, that the United States will hold them personally responsible for any violence against Americans by "any one claiming civil or military authority" was sent by Secretary Bryan through American Consul Letcher at Chihuahua City.

DYNAMITERS AFTER MAYOR GAYNOR

Five Sticks of Explosives Found Under His Window.

FLASH PREVENTED BY DEFECT

Discovery Was Made By Citizen Passing Through New York's City Hall Park.

New York.—A deadly charge of dynamite—three whole 10-inch sticks and two halves with a fuse and detonator—was discovered near Mayor Gaynor's office windows in the City Hall. The bureau of combustibles found that the explosive was 40 per cent. dynamite, the regulation blasting proportion, and the amount found would, if exploded, have wrecked the City Hall.

The Mayor was in his office when the dynamite was discovered by a citizen passing through City Hall Park. Mr. Gaynor evinced little interest when told of the explosive's proximity, and remained apparently undisturbed at his desk while police officers hurriedly drew a cordon about the dynamite to keep back an excited crowd.

Mr. Gaynor frequently receives threatening letters, but he would make no statement regarding the possible connection between any previous threat by mail and the dynamite. It is just three years ago this month that he was shot in the neck by a so-called crank, and so badly wounded that for several days it was feared he would die.

The investigators do not attach much importance to the finding of half burned matches and a partly consumed cigar near the explosive. Hundreds of smokers pass the areaway during the noon hour and some of them occasionally throw dead matches and cigar butts there.

The police authorities say that laborers sometimes carelessly drop dynamite sticks near their blasting operations. There is an excavation shaft on the Broadway side of City Hall Park, leading to the new subway construction. Detectives are making a close investigation of this location, although the contractors declare that they do not use 40 per cent. dynamite in their operations.

"MRS. WILSON" FLOWER'S NAME.

Other Blooms Christened Margaret, Jessie and Eleanor.

Washington.—"Mrs. Wilson" is the name of a new type of chrysanthemum that has been developed by the experts of the Department of Agriculture for the department's annual autumn flower show. Named in honor of the wife of the President, the new bloom is said to be a magnificent specimen. Other striking blooms have been christened "Margaret," "Jessie" and "Eleanor" after the three daughters of President and Mrs. Wilson.

WOULD PROBE DISSOLUTION.

Resolution In House Affects Union Pacific-Southern Pacific Decree.

Washington.—Investigation of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific dissolution decree by a congressional committee of nine, which also would report if further legislation were desirable to strengthen the anti-trust and interstate commerce laws, was proposed in a resolution by Representative Kindel, of Colorado. It charges that "two giant monopolies" have been more firmly established by the decree.

ARE WE KEEPING THEM OUT?

Is Any Country Trying To Get Footing In Western Hemisphere?

Washington.—Representative Clark, of Florida, introduced a resolution directing Secretary Bryan to advise the House whether any European, Asiatic or other governments were seeking to colonize any portion of the Western Hemisphere, and if so what the United States had done under the Monroe Doctrine to prevent it.

JOHNSON'S LIFE IS THREATENED

Congressman Relates Plot to Lobby Investigators.

MANY ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

Chairman Of the House District Of Columbia Committee Tells Of Repeated Threats Made Against Him.

Washington.—How his life was threatened, his person shadowed and his possessions rifled presumably by agents of those interested in defeating a bill reducing the legal rate of interest on loans in the District of Columbia was related to the House lobby investigating committee by Representative Ben Johnson, of Kentucky.

Mr. Johnson told the story of how he secured an affidavit in which a retired policeman named Sam Cornwall was quoted as intending to take his life; how he was shadowed one night some time later by a man whom he assumed to be Cornwall, and how the Congressman drew his revolver and was prepared to kill the shadower should an attack be made.

"I had a .45-calibre revolver under my coat," said Mr. Johnson simply, "and if the man had stepped from the curb I had made up my mind to kill him."

The man turned in the opposite direction and walked away.

Mr. Johnson is chairman of the House Commitee on the District of Columbia and was especially active in securing the passage of a bill reducing the legal rate of interest on loans in Washington. This legislation has practically driven the pawnbrokers out of business, and the lobby committee has heard testimony that a sum of nearly $12,000 was raised to defeat the Johnson bill.

Johnson said he and Speaker Champ Clark had secured the affidavit involving Cornwall from a policeman named Emory Roberts. This was after repeated attempts had been made to influence his course toward the loan shark legislation, said Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson described the attempts to break into his rooms in the House Office Building until he had to equip them all with intricate locks, the shadowing of himself and members of his family for months and the time when he discovered a fire in an office closet where he kept important records affecting the legislation under investigation at present. He also said he constantly receives anonymous letters threatening him with a dire fate for his activities against loan sharks, real estate sharks and other interests in the District. These letters had come by the hundreds, said Mr. Johnson, and still came to his desk.

KILLS WIFE AT BREAKFAST.

Man Then Blows Out His Brains To Escape Arrest.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Frantic because he had heard unfounded reports reflecting on his wife's character, John Marshall fired five bullets into her body as they sat at the breakfast table in their home in Martins Ferry across the Ohio river from here. Chief of Police Edward Hyland, who lived next door, heard the shots and forced the door to the Marshall house. Marshall fled to the attic, and Hyland summoned other policemen, who surrounded the house. Finding escape cut off, Marshall blew out his brains. Mrs. Marshall was killed in the presence of four of her six children.

MORE ROADS DAYS.

Other States Will Follow the Example Of Missouri Highway Builders.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Other Middle West States will follow Missouri's example and proclaim "road days" as the result of two days of voluntary work by Governor Major and 250,000 Missourians that resulted in 400 miles of new roads built and old highways improved, saving the State about $1,500,000.

F. B. HARRISON TO BIG POST

New York Congressman Governor-General of Philippines.

CHAMPION OF INDEPENDENCE

His Retirement From House Puts Palmer In Line For Majority Leadership.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Francis Burton Harrison, of New York, was nominated to be Governor-General of the Philippines to succeed W. Cameron Forbes.

Mr. Harrison is one of the leading members of the Ways and Means Committee and a stanch Administration supporter in the House.

His appointment was strongly urged by Majority Leader Underwood and Caucus Chairman A. Mitchell Palmer. It was also welcomed by the advocates in Congress of the immediate independence of the islands. Mr. Harrison, in the past, has been outspoken in his championship of independence for the Filipino people.

The retirement of Mr. Harrison from the House assures the election of Mr. Palmer to the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee and therefore to the majority leadership, should Representative Underwood be elected to the Senate from Alabama.

As Governor-General of the Philippines, Mr. Harrison will receive a salary of $15,000 a year and an additional sum of $5,000 a year as president of the Philippine Commission. This is more money than is paid to any official of the Government with the exception of the President. Ambassadors receive $17,500 a year, Cabinet members $12,000 and Ministers to foreign governments, $10,000 a year. The Governor of the Panama Canal Zone receives $14,000 a year.

Mr. Harrison is perhaps the wealthiest member of the House and the salary feature of the new job had no weight with him. He accepted the appointment, he told friends, because he believed there was much important work to be done in the islands. He wants to reorganize the whole Philippine Government and prepare the people of that Oriental archipelago for self-government as soon as it is possible.

The declarations in the Baltimore platform in favor of Philippine independence, the views of the President upon this question and the declared position of Mr. Harrison upon it lead to the belief that the Philippines will at least be given an opportunity of home rule before this Administration is ended.

A HUNDRED ARE KILLED.

Many Other Mexicans Injured In a Dynamite Explosion.

Mexico City.—It is estimated that nearly 100 persons were killed and almost as many injured when a car loaded with dynamite ran wild down the hill from the powder works at Santa Fe, jumped the track and dashed into a trolley pole in the suburb of Tacubaya and exploded.

The earth for miles around trembled and great damage was done to property. Within a radius of 500 feet from the scene of the explosion every house was demolished, while farther away in the village and in the adjoining town of San Pedro many fine residences were badly damaged and their interior furnishings ruined. Numerous Americans and other foreigners reside in Tacubaya and San Pedro, but none of them is reported to have been injured.

FRATERNAL BODIES UNITE.

The National Fraternal Congress Of America Is Organized.

Chicago.—The Associated Fraternities of America and the National Fraternal Congress held their last meeting as individual bodies here and adopted a constitution merging them into one organization to be known as the National Fraternal Congress of America. The new body stands as the only national organization of insurance, fraternities in the country. The membership is estimated at 8,000,000 policy holders.

CHURCH DYNAMITED.

Pittsburgh Police Unable To Explain Explosion—No One Injured.

Pittsburgh.—The police are unable to explain the motive for dynamiting the Methodist Episcopal Church in Hays Borough, which was badly damaged by an explosion. The church was crowded at the time, a lecture being in progress, but no one was hurt.

OLD LANDMARK GONE.

Lightning Destroys Cupola From Which Lee Directed Battle.

Gettysburg, Pa.—The cupola of the old seminary, from which General Lee directed the movements of the Confederate forces during the Battle of Gettysburg, was struck by lightning in a terrific storm and was burned, destroying one of the principal landmarks of the historic field.

NON-PARTISAN BALLOT LOSES

Application to Third-Class Cities Violates Uniformity

DUAL FILINGS ONLY SAFE

State Example in Receiving Party Petitions Urged on Counties—Judge Van Swearinger Files Opinion on Connellsville's New Government.

(Special Harrisburg Correspondence.)

Harrisburg.—An important opinion relative to the Clark Third Class city act of June 27, establishing a non-partisan ballot in third class cities, in which he declares that the non-partisan ballot is unconstitutional, was handed down by Judge John Q. Van Swearingen at Uniontown. The declaration of the unconstitutionality of the non-partisan features of the act affects every third class city in the State.

Judge Van Swearingen in his opinion, holds the provision in the act relative to changing Connellsville from a borough to a third class city is constitutional, and directs that the election for city officers be held this fall. The Judge said, in part:—

"The non-partisan ballot features of the act were held to be unconstitutional, on the ground that the exercise of the elective franchise is not within the purposes for which cities may be classified, and that, if a special method of nominating and electing officers of third class cities may be maintained under the Constitution, then another and different method may be adopted in cities of the second class and another in cities of the first class, another in counties and another in boroughs, another and a different one in each of the townships of the first and second classes and the school districts of the second, third and fourth classes, and another in the State at large, which would be in plain violation of the constitutional privilege that all laws regulating the holding of elections shall be uniform throughout the State."

Six cases were before the Court, raising different questions under the act, there being a contention as to whether any of the act applies to Connellsville, owing to its present state of transition from a borough to a city. All the questions raised in the six cases were disposed of by Judge Van Swearingen in the one opinion.

Party Filing May Count Now.

In view of the Fayette county decision, declaring unconstitutional the non-partisan ballot feature of the Clark-Rex third class city small Council bill, unofficial advice was given here that candidates for Council in third class cities will be wise to file partisan petitions as well as non-partisan. George D. Thorn, chief clerk in the department, made the suggestion, which is in line with the actions of numerous candidates for Judge.

Candidates for Judge, in addition to filing their non-partisan petitions, have been sending in petitions for places on party ballots, too, merely to protect themselves in case the Jones non-partisan ballot bill should be knocked out in Court. The State Department is accepting such party ballot petitions without officially "filing" them. Should the non-partisan bill go by the board the party petitions of Judges will be "filed" and the candidates thus protected.

Thorn says that no reason exists why Councilmanic candidates in third-class cities shouldn't do the same in their respective Commissioners' offices, though much, of course, depends on whether the County Commissioners will follow the example of the State Department and accept such papers.

Increase of Autos.

Some idea of the enormous increase in the number of automobiles can be gained from the requirements for license tags upon which bids will be opened by the State Highway Commissioner. In 1908 there were but 25,200 motor vehicles registered. Thus far in 1913 75,000 have been listed. The requirements for license tags for pneumatic tired and solid tired vehicles for 1914 are 101,000 tags, the solid tired class being trucks. Three thousand tags will be asked for the dealers' class and 10,000 for traction engines, of which 1,000 will be asked for trailers. The number for motorcycles will be 12,000. The tags will be black with a white background.

Water Power Survey.

The State Water Supply Commission will take up the problems attending inauguration of the survey of the water resources of the State required by the act of the last Legislature. This work will embrace an estimate of the water supply and water power and will cover the entire sixty-seven counties of the State.

Great Car Traffic.

When you speak of one car a minute do you realize what it means? That was the rate at which the Harrisburg Railways Company ran the cars to and from Paxtang Park when the band concert was held. It meant something like forty cars in service, and the way those cars flashed by corners was worth seeing. The cars were started from the Square sometimes three a minute, but they kept a minute or so apart. There were new cars, pay-as-you-enter cars, old four-wheelers, long open cars, Steelton rush hour cars and all other kinds.

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Varney, wife of a Confederate general, has lost one son and another is dying from wounds. She reluctantly gives her consent for Wilfred, the youngest, to join the army if his father consents. The federals are making their last assault in an effort to capture Richmond. Edith Varney secures from President Davis a commission for Capt. Thorne, who is just recovering from wounds, as chief of the telegraph at Richmond. Capt. Thorne tells Edith he has been ordered away. She declares he must not go and tells him of the commission from the president. He is strangely agitated and declares he cannot accept. Thorne decides to escape while Edith leaves the room to get the commission, but is prevented by the arrival of Caroline Mitford, Wilfred's sweetheart. Mr. Arrelsford of the Confederate secret service, a rejected suitor of Edith's, detects Jonas, Mrs. Varney's butler, carrying a note from a prisoner in Libby prison. Arrelsford suspects it is intended for Thorne. The note reads: "Attack tonight. Plan 3. Use Telegraph." Arrelsford declares Thorne is Lewis Dumont of the Federal secret service, and that his brother Henry is a prisoner in Libby. Edith refuses to believe and suggests that Thorne be confronted with the prisoner as a test. Caroline and Wilfred collaborate on a letter to the general asking permission for Wilfred to join the army. An order comes from General Varney for Wilfred to report to the front at once.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"Are those women in there yet?" he asked peremptorily.

"Yes."

"Where is the key?"

Mrs. Varney left the room and went to the door.

"It is on this side," she said.

"Will you lock it, please?"

The woman softly turned the key in the lock, and returned to the drawing room without a sound. As she did so the noise of the opening of one of the long French windows in the front of the room attracted the attention of both of them. Edith Varney entered the room nervously and stepped forward. She began breathlessly, in a low, feverishly excited voice.

"Mamma!"

Mrs. Varney hurried toward her and caught her outstretched hand.

"I want to speak to you," whispered the girl.

"We can't wait," said Arrelsford, stepping forward.

"You must," persisted the girl. She turned to her mother again, "I can't do it, I can't! Oh, let me go!"

"But, my dear," said her mother, "you were the one who suggested that—"

"But I was sure then, and now—"

"Has he confessed?" asked Mrs. Varney.

"No, no," answered the girl with a glance of fear and apprehension toward Arrelsford, who stood staring menacingly at her elbow.

"Don't speak so loud," whispered the secret service agent.

"Edith," said her mother soothingly, "what is it that has changed you?"

She waited for an answer, but none came. The girl's face had been very pale, but it now flushed suddenly with color.

"Dear," said her mother, "you must tell me."

Edith motioned Mr. Arrelsford away. He went with ill-concealed impatience to the far side of the room and waited nervously to give the signal, anxious lest something should miscarry because of this unfortunate unwillingness of the girl to play her part.

"What is it, dear?" whispered her mother.

"Mamma," said Edith, she forced the words out, "he—he—loves me."

"Impossible!" returned Mrs. Varney, controlling her voice so that the other occupant of the room could not hear.

"Yes," faltered the girl, "and I—some one else must do it."

"You don't mean," said Mrs. Varney, "that you return—"

But Mr. Arrelsford's patience had been strained to the breaking point. He did not know what interchange was going on between the two women, but it must be stopped. He came forward resolutely. The girl saw his determination in his face.

"No, no," she whispered, "not that, not now!"

She shrank away from him as she spoke.

"But, Edith," said Mrs. Varney, "more reason now than ever."

"I don't know what you are talking about," said Mr. Arrelsford, "but we must go on."

"But why—why are you doing this?" asked Edith, pleading desperately.

"Because I please," snapped out the secret service agent, and it was quite evident that he was pleased. Some of his satisfaction was due to the fact that he had by his own efforts at last succeeded in unearthing a desperate plot, and had his hands on the plotters. That he was thereby serving his country and demonstrating his fitness for his position of responsibility and trust also added to his satisfaction, but this was greatly enhanced by the fact that Thorne was his rival, and he could make a guess that he was a successful rival in love as well as in war.

"You have never pleased before," persisted Edith. "Hundreds of suspicious cases have come up—hundreds of men have been run down—but you preferred to sit at your desk in the war department, until—"

"Edith! Edith!" interposed her mother.

"I can't discuss that now," said Arrelsford.

"No, we will not discuss it. I will have nothing more to do with the affair."

"You won't," whispered Arrelsford threateningly.

"Don't say that," urged Mrs. Varney.

"Nothing, nothing, at all," said Edith.

"At your own suggestion, Miss Varney," persisted the secret service agent vehemently, "I agreed to accept a plan by which we could criminate this friend of yours or establish his innocence. When everything is ready you propose to withdraw and make the experiment a failure, perhaps allowing him to escape altogether and being a party to treason against your own country."

Edith looked from Arrelsford's set face, with his bitter words, the truth of which she was too just not to acknowledge, ringing in her ears, to the face of her mother. It was a sweet face, full of sympathy and love, but it was set in the same way as the man's. The patriotism of the woman was aroused. The kind of help that Edith wanted in her mother's look she did not find there.

"You musn't do this, Edith; you must do your part," said Mrs. Varney.

The resolution of the girl gave way.

"He is there," she faltered piteously, "he is there at the further end of the veranda. What more do you want of me?" Her voice rose in spite of her efforts to control herself.

"Call him to the room, and do it naturally. If anyone else should do it he would suspect something immediately and be on his guard."

"Very well," said the girl helplessly. "I will call him."

She turned toward the window.

"Wait," said Arrelsford, "one thing more. I want him to have this paper." He handed Edith the communication which had been taken from Jonas earlier in the evening.

"What am I to do with this?" asked the girl, taking it.

"Give it to him, and tell him where it came from. Tell him old Jonas got it from a prisoner at Libby prison and brought it to you."

"But why am I to do this?" asked the girl.

"Why not? If he is innocent, what's the harm? If not, if he is in the plot and we can't catch him otherwise, the message on the paper will send him to the telegraph office tonight, and that's where we want him."

"But I never promised that," said the girl with obvious reluctance to do anything not only that might tend to harm the suspected, but that might work to the furtherance of Arrelsford's designs.

"Do you still believe him innocent?" sneered the man.

Edith lifted her head and for the first time she looked Arrelsford full in the face.

"I still believe him innocent," answered the girl slowly and with deliberate emphasis.

"Then why are you afraid to give him the paper?" asked Arrelsford, directly with cunning adroitness.

The girl, thus entrapped, clasped the paper to her breast, and turned toward the window. Her mind was made up, but it was not necessary for her to call. Her ear, tuned to every sound he made, caught the noise of his footfall on the porch. She turned her head and spoke to the other two.

"Captain Thorne is coming," she whispered expressionlessly, "unless you want to be seen, you had better go."

"Here, this way, Mrs. Varney," said Arrelsford, taking that lady by the arm and going down to the far end to the door covered by the portieres.

The two disappeared, and it was impossible for a soul to see them in the darkness of the hall, although they could see clearly enough, even in the dimly lighted drawing room, everything that would happen. Edith stood as if rooted to the floor, the paper still in her hand, when Thorne opened the sash which she had closed behind her and entered in his turn the window through which she had come a short time before. He stepped eagerly toward her.

"You were so long," he whispered, "coming for me, that—" He stopped abruptly and looked at her face, "is anything the matter?"

"No."

"You had been away such a long time that I thought—"

"Only a few minutes."

"Only a few years," said the man passionately. His voice was low and gently modulated, not because he had anything to conceal but because of the softnesss of the moonlight and the few candles dimly flickering upon the walls of the great room, the look in the girl's eyes, and the feeling in his heart. A few minutes, the girl had said—Ah, it was indeed a few years to him.

"If it was a few years to you," returned the girl with a violent effort at lightness, although her heart was torn to pieces with the emotions of the moment, "what a lot of time there is."

"No," said Thorne, "there is only tonight."

Edith threw out her hand to check what she would fain have heard, but Thorne caught it. He came closer to her.

"There's only tonight, and you in the world," he said.

"You overwhelm me."

"I can't help myself. I came here determined not to tell you how I loved you, and for the last half hour I have been telling you nothing else. I could tell you all my life and never finish. Ah, my darling, my darling—there's only tonight and you."

Edith swayed toward him for a moment, completely influenced by his ardor, but then drew back.

"No, no," she faltered. "You mustn't." She glanced around the room apprehensively. "No, no, not now!"

"You are right," said the man. She dragged herself away from him. He would not retain her against her will, and without a struggle he released her hand. "You are right. Don't mind what I said, Miss Varney. I have forgotten myself, believe me." He drew further away from her. "I came to make a brief call, to say good-bye and—"

He turned and walked toward the hall door, after making her a low bow, and it was not without a feeling of joy that she noticed that he walked unsteadily, blindly.

"Oh, Captain Thorne," she said, just as he reached the door, "I—"

He stopped and looked back.

"Before you go I want to ask your advice about something."

"My advice?"

"Yes, it seems to be a military matter, and—"

"What is it?" asked Thorne, turning back.

"What do you think this means?"

"Prisoner, Sir, Broke Out of Libby."

said the girl, handing him the folded dispatch.

She had intended to look him full in the face as he took it, but at the last moment her courage failed her. She looked away and did not see the instant but quickly mastered start of surprise. She was only conscious that Thorne had possessed himself of the document.

"What is it?" asked Thorne, holding it in his hand.

"That is what I want you to tell me," said the girl.

"Oh, don't you know?" said Thorne, now entirely master of himself.

"No," answered the girl, but there was something in her voice which now fully aroused the suspicions of the man.

"It appears to be a note from some one," he said casually, "but it is so dark in here. With your permission, I will light some of the candles on the table, and then we can see what it is."

He took one of the candles from the sconces on the wall and lighted the candelabra that stood on the nearest table. Holding the paper near the light, he glanced around rapidly, and then read it, giving no outward evidence of his surprise and alarm, although the girl was now watching him narrowly. He glanced at her and then looked at the paper again, and slowly read aloud its message

"'Attack tonight?'" he said very deliberately. "Umph, 'Plan 3? Attack tonight, plan 3!' This seems to be in some code, Miss Varney, or a puzzle."

"It was taken from a Yankee prisoner."

"From a Yankee prisoner!" he exclaimed in brilliantly assumed surprise.

"Yes, one captured today. He is down at Libby now. He gave it to one of our servants, old Jonas, and—"

"That's a little different," said Thorne, examining the paper again. "It puts another face on the matter. This may be something important. 'Attack tonight,'" he read again, "'Plan 3, use telegraph!' This sounds important to me, Miss Varney. It looks to me like a plot to use the department telegraph lines. To whom did Jonas give it?"

"To no one."

"Well, how did you—"

"We took it away from him," answered Edith.

This was a very different statement from her original intention, but for the moment the girl forgot her part.

"Oh," said Thorne, "I think that was a mistake."

"A mistake?"

"Yes."

"But why?"

"You should have let him deliver it, but it is too late now. Never mind." He turned toward the door.

Edith caught him by the arm. Was he going out to certain death or what?

"What are you going to do?" she asked breathlessly.

"Find Jonas, and make him tell for whom this paper was intended. He is the man we want."

The girl released him, and caught her throat with her hand.

"Captain Thorne," she choked out, and there was joy and triumph in her face, "they have lied about you."

Thorne turned to her quickly.

"Lied about me!" he exclaimed. "What do you mean?"

He caught the girl's hands in his and bent over her.

"Don't be angry," pleaded Edith, "I didn't think it would be like this."

"Yes, yes, but what do you mean?"

Edith sought to draw her hands away from him, but Thorne would not be denied.

"I must know," he said.

"Let me go," pleaded the girl, "don't you understand—"

But what she might have said further was interrupted by the sharp, stern voice of the corporal outside. He spoke loud and clearly, there was no necessity for precaution now.

"This way! Look out for that side, will you?"

Thorne released the hands of the woman he loved and stood listening. Edith Varney took advantage of such a diversion to dart through the upper door, the nearer one, into the hall.

"I don't want to be here now," she said, as she flew away.

Thorne's hand went to his revolver which hung at his belt. He had not time to draw it before the corporal and the two men burst through the door. There were evidently others outside. Thorne's hand fell away from his revolver, and his position was one of charming nonchalance.

"Out here!" cried the corporal to one of the soldiers. "Look out there!" pointing to the doorway through which the two men instantly disappeared.

"What is it, corporal?" asked Thorne composedly.

The corporal turned and saluted.

"Prisoner, sir, broke out of Libby! We've run him down the street, and he turned in here somewhere. If he comes in that way, would you be good enough to let us know?"

"Go on, corporal," said Thorne coolly. "I'll look out for this window."

He stepped down the long room toward the far window, drew the curtains, and with his hand on his revolver, peered out into the trees beyond the front of the house.

The Difference in Men.

One man will settle down into the routine of his calling, digging the ruts deeper each day, until he loses power to see out from them. Another, in the same vocation, shows an ability to make each day's work a source of new growth in power and in appreciation. So, one person will rest passively on the fact of some well-established love or friendship, and thus lose, after a time, the beauty of the relationship and the meaning it once possessed for his life; while another actively woos the love of his friend every day, and so finds a deep, ever opening below deep in the relationship, with an ever fresh realization of the truth and wonder of life.—Edward Howard Griggs.

RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SLUM

Society Can Not Ignore Its Share of Blame When the Facts Are Brought to Light of Day.

Children work out their destiny along the lines of environment. If two infants, one born in a slum hovel and the other in a palace, were exchanged on the day of birth, each would work out his destiny in accordance with his surroundings. The child of the hovel would grow up to the palace. The child of the palace would remain on the level of the slum hovel.

While a noted physician was making these statements before a body of learned colleagues, a jury in Chicago found three boys, aged consecutively seventeen, eighteen and nineteen years, guilty of murder and convicted them to long terms in prison. The slayers were all slum products. Their youth saved them from hanging.

Society cannot afford to wax sentimental over a murderer because of his youth. Its duty, in self-preservation, is to inflict punishment. A part of this self-preservation duty, however, is to prevent the growth of murderers. In so far as society allows slums to exist and other degrading influences to be fostered, it is not without responsibility for the criminal.

Strange Guests at St. Bernard.

An enormous flock of swallows was overtaken by a heavy snowstorm near the famous Hospice of St. Bernard in the Alps last winter. When the good monks saw the birds, they opened the doors and windows of their building that the little feathered strangers might have shelter.

All the rooms were crowded with them, thousands remaining until sunrise. The next day proved fine and the guests pursued their way toward Italy. This is very pleasant to learn, but it saddens one to know that a vast number of less fortunate birds failed to reach the Hospice and were found dead in the snow by the tenderhearted brothers.

COMMERCIAL

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Dun's Review says:

"Current distribution of merchandise continues in normal volume, while steady preparations are being made for an active fall and winter business. Conservatism has been accentuated somewhat by the damage to corn, yet in a broad sense crop conditions are still promising and, with remunerative prices prevailing, another prosperous year is assured. The heavy movement of agricultural products to market contributes liberally to transportation revenues, while the exports of grain and other commodities add materially to credit balances abroad.

"Domestic monetary considerations have become a matter of less concern, and political developments in Europe also made for an easier situation there. Changes in strictly mercantile and industrial conditions are of a mixed character, with favorable features predominating.

"Failures numbered 272 in the United States, against 288 last year, and 38 in Canada, compared with 33 a year ago."

There ought to be some regard for the fitness of candidates by those who sign petitions of nomination papers. Of course, this warning is too late for the coming primary, but there is a long time ahead. Then there is that everlasting leech needing attention.

If you are in sympathy with the present Democratic administration, Mr. Democrat, vote for W. D. Zerby, Esq, for state committeeman. You can give positive evidence that you are a Wilson-Bryan Democrat and that you have confidence in the Democratic state organization as it now exists by casting your vote for Mr. Zerby at the Primary election, on September 16

Farmer W. T. Creasy will likely be a candidate for state senator in his district next year. He was one of the Democrats who was defeated for nomination by a combination of pretending Democrats and Republicans who were interested in being rid of the Grangers in the law-making body at the state capital. He was too alert in the House to please either his direct political opponents and those of his party who were walking arm in arm with the Republican machine manipulators.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Kister and son Frank Kister and grandson Oran G., on their return from Bellefonte in an auto car, stopped with the Reporter long enough to encourage the editor to stand firm on the reorganization movement. Zerby, Esq, for State Committeeman.

COUNTY GRANGE MEETING

Appropriates $500 for Creamery Which May be Utilized at Centre Hall.

A highly interesting meeting of Progress Grange was held at Oak Hall, in Victor Grange Hall, on Thursday of last week, and the attendance was very good. A representative of Victor Grange welcomed the members, and Prof C. R. Neff made the response, after which the body went to work on its program.

The Master appointed several general committees, and then the reports of the standing committees were heard. D. K. Keller, representing the fire insurance company, stated the business of the last quarter indicated prosperity, and that no tax for a period of three years had been laid. The Grange Encampment committee reported that new buildings were being erected, new tents provided to accommodate exhibitors and tenters; that exhibitors were engaging space, and that the general outlook for a big exhibition was good.

The telephone company reported growth in business, and that a total of $350 was ready for distribution to telephone users, the same being from earnings over cost of operating.

By resolution a committee was appointed to create a degree team.

The body by resolution offered to appropriate $500 towards establishing a creamery, on the condition that any local Grange contribute a like amount. The governing power of the creamery is to be delegated to directors, an equal number to represent the local Grange interested and the County Grange.

The last item on the program was a discussion on the "Good of the Order."

The next meeting will be held at Centre Hall, in Grange Arcadia, in November.

BARRY-MITTERLING.

Lutheran Minister Becomes Benedict Wednesday Evening—Church Wedding, and Very Pretty.

Rev. Frederick William Barry and Miss Anna Mary Mitterling were united in marriage on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the Lutheran church, Centre Hall, where the groom is the pastor and the bride a member of the congregation. The ceremony was pretty and impressive, the recent improvements in the auditorium of the church adding to convenience and fitness for such a ceremony.

After the assembling of the guests, and promptly at the appointed time, the officiating minister, Dr. W. E Fischer of Shamokin appeared on the altar platform amid the decorations of white, gold and green. The first of the wedding party to pass through the column of ushers was the ring-bearer, Carrie Mitterling, sister of the bride, who entered on the right side of the auditorium and passed up the aisle on that side, taking her place on the right of the chancel platform. The groom was led to the altar by Rev. Jacob Diehl, pastor of the First Lutheran church in Lock Haven, through the left aisle. The maid of honor, Miss Laura Mitterling, also a sister of the bride, led the way for the bride and her father, who passed up the right aisle onto the chancel. The bride took a position immediately in front of the waiting minister, and to the right of the groom. "Who giveta this woman to this man,"? were the first words of Dr. Fischer in performing the ceremony, and at their sound the wedding march being played by Misses Berte and Olive Barry, sisters of the groom, ceased. After the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Mitterling, where a reception was held.

The bride was dressed in white satin, and looked very pretty.

The ushers were Messrs. Cleveland Mitterling, Henry Mitterling, W. J. Smith, and John Coldron.

There were many gifts presented to the bride. The reception was a most delightful affair.

HOLDEN PLANS TO PUT ALFALFA ON EVERY FARM

Plan to Unite All Interests in Nation-Wide Campaign for the General Growing of Alfalfa.

Extension Department to Aid Any Community Interested in Conducting Campaign to Encourage the Growing of Alfalfa—No More Difficult to Grow Than Clover and Gives Double the Yield.

Alfalfa Automobile Trains Important Feature of the Work—Schedules to Be Arranged and Meetings to Be Held at Farm Homes—Prominent Speakers to Accompany Each Alfalfa Train—Alfalfa Organizations Will Be Formed in Each Community to Promote the Work—Field Men Experienced in Alfalfa Growing Will Follow Up Preliminary Work Wherever Possible and Give Aid in Getting a Start—Prof. P. G. Holden, Director Extension Department, International Harvester Company of New Jersey, Chicago, Will Direct the Work.

The campaign will be conducted in co-operation with farmers' institutes, bankers, business men, farmers, commercial clubs, granges, live stock and dairy associations and other organizations in any community where the people are anxious to improve their agricultural conditions and are willing to give time and money to carry on the work.

County and city superintendents of schools, colleges, institute workers, Chautauqua lecturers, and others interested in the work will be assisted in obtaining alfalfa charts and lantern slides. Alfalfa literature and booklets will be given wide distribution throughout the country. Special alfalfa articles will be sent to farm journals and magazines, and plate and matrix pages to newspapers. Alfalfa editions of newspapers will be published where campaigns are conducted. Dates will be arranged for "Alfalfa Day" in the schools.

To Begin Campaign Work in East, West and South.

Work to be started immediately in the cotton belt states and in the east and west. Thirty to forty meetings will be held in each county, the number depending on local conditions.

To accomplish the most in agricultural development, we must begin with the man behind the crop. Upon him depends the final working out of the principles of agriculture—the simple and practical things—which our schools, colleges and experiment stations are endeavoring to bring into general use.

Professor Holden proposes to carry these principles further even than the very effective work done on the agricultural trains, by using that most modern vehicle—the automobile—going directly to the people on their own farms where the meetings are to be held.

Alfalfa Greatest Soil-Enriching Crop.

Agricultural development needs in addition to the work of our public institutions, the individual efforts of every merchant, banker, corporation, or laboring man, and this plan calls for their heartiest co-operation.

This plan for increasing the yields of our crops by the more extensive growing of that wonderful soil improver, ALFALFA, is meeting the approval of all men who have any knowledge of the beneficial results of its introduction as a general crop.

Campaigns are now being conducted in many of the central western states, and Professor Holden is daily answering requests for his assistance in organizing other localities, and invites cordial co-operation with every community interested.

Where campaigns are contemplated it is required, first, that a request be made to the Agricultural Extension Department for assistance in carrying on the campaign.

What the local people will provide:

(1) Expenses (meals and lodging) for the alfalfa speakers and staff upon their arrival and during the campaign.

HOW TRAGEDY WAS AVERTED

Farmer Saw His Predictions Verified If Train Had Only Come Through His Land Sideways.

In a Tennessee backwoods lived a farmer who, although he had never seen a railroad, yet had his opinion of them and the mischief which he understood they might cause. According to his notion, a train was as much to be dreaded as a cyclone itself. Great, then, was his consternation upon learning that a right of way for a railroad was wanted through his farm. He swore "by hickory" that no money could buy it. Finally land enough for the purpose was condemned and the road built. The day the first train was to pass, the neighbors, knowing of the old fellow's opposition, persuaded him, nevertheless, to go with them to see it. As the train disappeared, some one said: "You see, Bill, it didn't hurt anything, after all." Bill was surprised, but hated to abandon his contention that a train would ruin things. "Wal, yaas," he said, "I reckon that ye mought say so, but ye see the gosh-durned thing come through here endways. Ef it hed come sideways, it would a busted the daylights outen of every cow in the place."

Egged Off.

De Wolf Hopper, at a luncheon in New York, said of a bad actor:

"He's had hints enough to quit the stage, dear knows. He's had more hints than Phatt.

"Phatt, after a brief experience on the road as 'Hamlet,' returned to his job in Canal street.

"'How did you come to leave the stage?' I asked him one night.

"'I had hints that I wasn't suited to it,' he replied.

"Thinking he meant the critics, I said:

"'Aha, the litle birds told you, eh?'

"'Well,' said he, 'they'd have become birds, I suppose, if they'd been allowed to hatch.'"

Teaching Safety in Schools.

HE CARRIED AN UMBRELLA.

A dear old lady who was very "sot" in her prejudices was asked just why she didn't like a certain man. She had no particular reason that she could think of at the instant, but she had been so emphatic in her expression of dislike that she knew she would have to find some excuse—at once. Just at that moment she happened to glance out of the window and saw him passing by. He carried a neatly rolled umbrella though it hardly threatened rain.

Quick as a flash she answered her questioner, "He carries an umbrella whether it's raining or not—he is a 'softie.'"

"But," said her friend, also looking out of the window, "here comes your son William, and he is carrying an umbrella."

This did not stump the old lady. "But that's another matter—I don't like him anyhow—and besides, it all depends on who carries the umbrella," she replied triumphantly.

That is the position some people have taken regarding that wholesome and refreshing beverage Coca-Cola. They have said a good many unkind things about it and in each instance have had it proved to them that their tales were not true.

Finally they seized upon the fact that Coca-Cola gets much of its refreshing deliciousness from the small bit of caffeine that it contains. They looked upon that as a splendid argument against it. Then, like the old lady who was reminded of son William, they were reminded that it is the caffeine in their favorite beverages, tea and coffee, (even more than in Coca-Cola) that gives them their refreshing and sustaining qualities.

But does that stop their criticism of Coca-Cola for containing caffeine? No—their answer is similar to the old lady's—they say "But that's another matter"—what they mean is "Being prejudiced against Coca-Cola and liking tea or coffee, it all depends on what carries the caffeine."

We think the joke is on them—for caffeine is caffeine, and if it is not harmful in one it can't be harmful in another. We all know that it is not harmful in tea or coffee—that it is really helpful in whatever it is—this is bound to include Coca-Cola.

Of course, the truth is, that having started an attack on false premises and having had what they thought were good reasons for criticism proved to be no reasons at all, they are grasping at an excuse which does not exist, to explain a prejudice. So you see, after all, it all depends on who carries the umbrella to people who are determined to be unfair. Let us be fair.—Adv.

HABITS OF THE ROBIN

Bird Prefers to Build Its Nest Near the House.

Young Songsters Should Not Be Handled Until They Leave Nest of Their Own Accord—Sparrows Rob Them of Worms.

(By CRAIG S. THOMAS.)

Of all the birds that build in trees the robin brings its nest nearest the house. It prefers to be at the front door, where the members of the family are constantly coming and going, and if it can find a suitable place it will build directly over the walk. This makes a number of interesting facts easy of observation.

Let the nozzle of the hydrant drip until the ground below it holds a little pool of water, or by some other means provide a pool somewhere in the yard. To this pool the robin will come for mud to build the walls of her nest. Into it she will souse billfulls of dried grass before mixing it with the mud. In it she will wet herself before flying to her nest to mould the mortar wall of mud and grass to fit her body.

When the young fill the nest every child in the family will want to climb up to see them, and the older children will be tempted to lift them out of the nest, hold them in the hand, and possibly take them into the house a moment to show mother what bird babies are like. But to do this is all but sure to result in the death of the young. A young bird once lifted from the nest has "found his legs," and will never be satisfied in the nest again. He will climb upon its edge and go bumping down on the lawn long before he is able to fly, and the neighbor's cat is sure to get him. Young birds should never be handled until they leave the nest of their own accord.

As the parent-robins search the lawn for worms to feed their young, hopping a little way and then stopping to look and listen, you will often see an English sparrow following close behind and a little to right or left. He is expecting the robin to pull a worm from the ground, when he will dive boldly for it, snatch it away, and make off with it. In this piratical enterprise the sparrow is not infrequently successful.

Note your robins carefully. Discover upon them if possible some distinguishing mark, and see whether they return to you another year. A male with left wing drooping almost to the ground as it hopped, returned three successive years to the same yard. It has doubtless been injured in a fight, which is not an infrequent occurrence. One may not be certain that plumage markings of exceptional character will recur year after year, as plumage may vary with moultings. But any malformation, resulting usually from injury, renders identification all but certain.

ALFALFA AS MILK PRODUCER

Hay, With Proper Kind of Grain and Little Succulence, Will Duplicate June Pasture.

(By L. R. WADDON, Superintendent Dickinson, N. D., Sub-Station.)

Alfalfa is of great value as a milk producer, for it is a well known fact that an ample milk flow requires rich feeds. Good June pasture produces an abundance of milk. It has been demonstrated that alfalfa hay, when used with a proper kind of grain, and with a little succulence, such as ensilage, will practically duplicate a June pasture.

When cows are properly fed, before turning onto pasture, they show no increase of milk flow upon the pasture. If a dairy cow is properly fed, she must have a ration that contains a larger percentage of protein than is found in common hays or in most of the grains. Protein is supplied through bran, linseed meal or some other concentrate. To pay high prices for these to increase the milk flow means that the cost of milk production is increased, and in many cases to such an extent that milk is produced at a loss, or at a very nominal margin.

Cow and Soil Fertility.

The fertility of the soil can best be maintained by the liberal use of barnyard manure, and the dairy herd not only makes this possible, but dairying is also more remunerative than almost any other branch of farming when it is properly carried on.

Remove Old Canes.

Remove and burn the old raspberry canes immediately after fruiting. This is the best means to control anthracnose, which is the most destructive disease of the raspberry.

CHEAP HELP ON MANY FARMS

Besides Adding to Revenue of Farmer by Wool and Mutton, Sheep Devour Many Noxious Plants.

(By W. A. LINKLATER, Oklahoma Experiment Station.)

It would add to the revenue of many farms if a flock of sheep were kept. Besides being profitable they are great weed eaters. They will eat five out of six of our known weeds, where a cow or horse will eat only one out of every six.

Range-bred sheep are the right kind for the average farmer to buy. Such will be graded Merinos and if they carry a cross of Shropshire, Lincoln and other mutton blood, so much the better. It would not be advisable to buy Mexican sheep or low grade sheep of any other kind.

The ewes purchased for the foundation flock should be good, large animals from one to four years old, and weighing more than 100 pounds. Where possible it would seldom be practical to start with less than 50 ewes, and a larger number would be better still. A flock of a dozen would require almost as much care as 50 or 100. These range-bred grade Merinos should be bred to a Dorset ram if possible.

The reason we recommend buying range-bred grade Merino ewes is that thousands of these are available, while Dorests are not to be had in large numbers.

These fall or early winter lambs, by good feeding and care can be made to weigh 90 to 100 pounds by May 1, when they will find a ready market and will always be in demand. Such lambs should bring from $5 upward.

SELECTING CORN FOR SEED

Technical Knowledge on Part of Farmer Not Necessary for Improvement of His Crop.

(By J. M. GRAY.)

The possibilities of improvement of corn by judicious selection, are very great. Ever since man has been tilling the soil, he has changed the character of plants by consciously or unconsciously making selections. The improvement of any plant is considered by most farmers a very difficult operation and one to be undertaken only by those who are qualified by natural ability and special training, to such work. Yet it does not require any technical knowledge on the part of the farmer to improve corn, for the methods of selection are very simple.

Every farmer who is growing corn should plant some standard variety which he knows has been tested and gives the most profitable yields in his locality, and from this he should select, each year, seed that comes nearest to his ideal. It is necessary to make this selection each year because if it is not done the corn will soon revert to the original type and lose those qualities which the farmer has been striving to get.

In your selections, instead of looking for an ideal ear only, look for an ideal stalk made up of an ideal stem, of ideal foliage and of an ideal root system bearing an ideal ear or ears covered with ideal husks, and supported by an ideal shank. Possibly this will be hard to find; but you can find something which approaches it and from this, with your ideal in view, you can select continuously until you have a plant very nearly approaching that ideal.

Inferior Lambs.

Lambs of low vitality and ewes deficient in milk flow at lambing time are usually the result of improper management during the pregnant period.

DAIRY NOTES

Not all cow keepers are dairy farmers.

Warm and cold cream ought not to be mixed.

Good dairy stock show their possibilities early.

Many eastern farmers feed grain to milk cows on pasture.

Quiet and comfort are what count in dairying, and more especially in hot-weather dairying.

Successful dairying depends entirely on right methods in breeding, feeding and management.

If there is no silo on your farm, do not let another winter catch you unprepared. Make your plans right now for one.

Oftentimes the one who has dairy butter for sale must take his pay in trade, while those who sell cream get nothing but cash.

In selecting cows, all signs may fail, but the Babcock test is absolutely reliable. It will tell you whether the cows are good or not.

ECZEMA DISFIGURED FACE

Hampton Springs, Fla.—"I had had eczema on my face and hands for about three years. My face was badly disfigured. The eczema broke out in pimples and itched so very badly I would scratch it all the time. It was the most irritating disease I ever had. It started on my face and hands and it spread all over my body. I had great large sores all over me, caused from the eczema. It bothered me day and night so that I could not rest at all.

"I used three remedies for skin disease and they didn't give relief at all. I was almost terrified until a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. They helped me from the time I started to use them. I only used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and was cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. C. Parker, Dec. 7, 1912.

Plant That Catches Its Food.

The common bladderwort, an aquatic plant, not only defends itself against insects and animals, but catches worms and fish for its food. As it floats underneath the surface of the water its leafy branches spread out in all directions. Its leaves are covered with little oval bladders filled with air, and at one end of each bladder is a cavity which leads into the mouth below. Inside the bladder is a small trap door which opens when pressure is put on it. A small worm or a small fish can enter this door, but they can never come out.

OLD ADAM STRONG IN HIM

Sad Time for Mother When She Realized Her Pet Had Passed Beyond the Angelic Period.

Mother's darling, age four, was not to be like other boys and learn to use naughty and slangy words. He was not allowed to play with the older boys in the neighborhood for fear his sensitive nature might be shocked at the language they used. One day, while mother was busy, he slipped over into the next street and played for half an hour with a crowd of older boys. In that half hour he took a complete course in modern language.

An his return mother said:

"Where has my precious been?"

"You should worry and get a wrinkle," he cheerfully replied.

"Dearest, tell mother where you learned such horrible language!" mother exclaimed.

"Aw, good night, shirt," came sweetly from the Cupid bow mouth.

Then mother commenced to weep, for she realized that her angel child was just a boy after all.

"I don't believe they are as black as they are painted."

Same Thing.

In the early days of Arizona, an elderly and pompous chief justice was presiding at the trial of a murder case. An aged negro had been ruthlessly killed, and the only eye witness to the murder was a very small negro boy. When he was called to give his testimony, the lawyer for the defense objected on the ground that he was too young to know the nature of an oath, and in examining him asked:

"What would happen to you if you told a lie?"

"De debbil 'ud git me!" the boy replied.

"Yes, and I'd get you," sternly said the chief justice.

"Dat's jus' what I said!" answered the boy.—National Monthly.

Keep Your Blood Cool

by Right Kind of Food and Enjoy Hot Weather

It's largely a matter of selecting the hot weather diet with reason.

Summer is Nature's season of activity — seed-time, growing-time, harvest-time — a time of expansion, energy — and Man is influenced to do his part — to put forth greater effort because activity is in the very air.

BUT — caution is necessary to avoid excessive heat from combustion (digestion) of heavy, greasy food (Nature's way of generating body-heat in winter), in addition to the heat of the summer atmosphere.

Grape-Nuts

is the Ideal Food for hot weather because, being largely predigested (and concentrated) in the making at the factory, it is quickly absorbed, a small quantity affording great endurance with little effort in digesting it.

Grape-Nuts, made of Whole Wheat and Barley, contains all the natural elements of these cereals, including the phosphate of potash grown in the grain for rebuilding waste tissue cells, especially of brain and nerves.

Try for breakfast, lunch or supper:—

A Little Fruit; Saucer of Grape-Nuts and Cream; A Soft Boiled Egg; Slice of Crisp Toast, and a Cup of Postum, hot—or iced with sugar and lemon.

Surprising how cool, yet full of healthy energy and "go" one feels on such a meal no matter what the weather.

LOCALS

The offices that have a bit of salary attached are not in want of candidates The quality varies.

Mrs. E. S. Mason of Wilkinsburg is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs Samuel Shoop in Centre Hall.

Miss Gertrude Keefer, of Youngwood, is spending a short time with her friend, Miss Cora Brungard.

To-day (Thursday) the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday-schools are holding a united basket picnic on Grange Park.

You have until September third to register your politics. Do not wait until that time, but register at your first opportunity.

Miss Martha Boal of Centre Hall, according to the Lewistown Democrat and Sentinal. is at the home of Mr. and Mrs Charles Meyer, in Reedsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dartt of Bethlehem are guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Lieb in Centre Hall, the doctor being an uncle of the former. Mr Dartt was born in Bellefonte, but left there with his parents when but a boy. He is now assistant engineer on the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

T. Witmer Smith, local manager of the Commercial telephone exchange in Bellefonte, purchased the Brunell farm, one-half mile above Milesburg railroad station. The place contains fifty-two acres. The stock and implements were also purchsed. Mr. Smith and family now occupy the place.

Penns Valley had a fine rain Fridsy and the following night. The precipitation was .50 inches. This will finish many corn crops, give the second crop of grass a boost, put the fallow fields in fine condition to prepare for a seed bed, laid three inches of dust on earth roads, and did a lot of other good besides furnishing water for cisterns.

State Zoologist H. A. Surface has a crop of 20,000 baskets of peaches to harvest in an orchard of 80 acres. The orchard is located at Mechanicsburg, in Cumberland county. The whole crop will be picked without the use of ladders of any kind. This is positive proof that Dr. Surface is capable of giving instruction from actual experience.

Prof. Houtz, one of the faculty in the Susquehanna University, filled the appointments in the Lutheran churches at Centre Hall, Georges Valley and Union, last Sunday, in the absence of the pastor who gave no notice of the intended change. Prof Houtz, early in the seventies, attended the county normal school at Centre Hall, Superintendent R. M. Magee being in charge. He had not been out through the town since that time, and, as is altogether natural after such a long span of time, found so many changes here that he could scarcely recognize the place.

ORPHANS BUILD CHURCH.

Bausman Memorial at Bethany Home, Costing $11,000, Free of Debt.

Headed by the Rev. William F. Moore, superintendent of Bethany Orphans' Home, at Womelsdorf, its two-hundred and eight boys and girls marched from the old chapel to the new Bausman Memorial Church, which at 4 o'clock on Sunday was dedicated by the superintendent, assisted by other ministers of the Reformed denomination.

It is the Berks county custom for entire congregations to aid with actual physical work in the erection of a new church, and in this instance the boys and girls of the orphanage, from six to eighteen years old, did the greater part of the labor. They cleared the site in the woods, hauled stones from the mountain, put them in position for final placing by masons; they mixed mortar, helped the carpenters, and in general did the larger part of the work.

The church cost close to $11,000 and is free of debt. The cost was chiefly subscribed by friends of the Rev. Dr. Benjamin Bausman, in whose honor the church was named, and who for many years was a member of the board of trustees of the Orphans' Home and also the president the of board for many years.

Van Valzah Farm Sold.

The farm known as the Van Valzah farm, west of Centre Hall, now tenanted by Benner Walker and owned by Mrs. Mary Van Valzah, widow of the late Dr. Shepherd Van Valzah, of Paulsboro, New Jersey, was sold by her representative, Johnston Van Valzah, Esq, of Lewisburg, to Perry W. Breon, a resident of Centre Hall, the purchase price being $6000 Mr. Breon will occupy the place next spring.

The farm was originally a part of the Alexander tract, owned by James Alexander, and it was here where State Senator C. T. Alexander began farming operations during the latter fifties of the last century. It was later owned by John Boozer, father of D. A. Boozer, and afterwards was purchased by the late William Heckman.

The farm contains about one hundred and twenty acres, eighty acres of which lie south of the Brush Valley road, and the remainder to the north of the road surrounding the buildings.

Aaronsburg.

James Frank of Rebersburg spent a few hours at the O. P. Adam's home.

Mrs. Will Summers and daughter of Clearfield are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Sarah Leitzel.

Mrs. Ella Eyre and daughter Mary Jane, were entertained at the home of Dr. C. S. Musser for a few days.

Mrs. Maria Deshler, through the kindness of Z. D. Thomas, was taken in an auto to spend a day with her many friends at Rebersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Merill Eisenhauer from Bellefonte are paying their annual visit here to Mr. and Mrs. Gillard Eisenhauer.

The Misses Cummings of Linden Hall were the welcome guests at the home of Charley Wolfe. Mrs. Bradly Milliray also visited at the Wolfe home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Philips returned last Thursday from Akron, Ohio, where they were called on account of the death of the former's brother, Frank Philips.

There are quite a number of children sick in this community, and among them are a little daughter of William Kester's, a Sheesley boy, Ruth and baby Winklebech. The latter two are very much improved.

Elmer Weaver and Lewis Boob of Akron, Ohio, came to Aaronsburg, the latter having been called here on account of the illness of his mother. Both are natives of this place, and grew to manhood here.

Mrs. Wm. Wert of Mifflinburg and her daughter, Mrs. A. Lehman of Hummelstown, and Miss Edith Houser of Bellefonte, are all having a very nice time visiting their aunt and grandmother, Mrs. L. K. Lenker.

Miss Helen Stover had her Sunday-school class out on Wednesday for a picnic. The ladies were: Helen Bower, Martha Bower, Ruth Stover, Jennie Stover, Ruth, Lizzie and Wance Winklebech, and Edna Winklebech.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rhoads and son Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Tate, the latter better known here as Rosa Mingle, composed an automobile party from Bellefonte who came here Saturday evening and spent Sunday at the home of A. S. Stover, Esq, returning home in the evening. They took with them Miss Thelma Tate, who was a guest for a week at the Stover home.

Centre Mills.

N. B. Shaffer's father of this place is seriously ill.

The picnic at Rockville was at Mrs. J. Klines.

Mr. Best from Nittany valley purchased the home of Edward Miller, near this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Dean of Waddle spent Sunday at the home of her mother at Centre Mills.

Calvin Kline's two sons and two brothers of State College visited at the home of their brother at this place.

Miss Edna Bailey visited at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kline, while her mother and father spent Sunday at Grader's Ford.

Big Eyes, Big Brain.

Professor Laugier, a French scientist, has discovered that the size of the brain in animals is in exact proportion to the size of the eyes. The bigger the eyes the bigger the brains. Of course this only applies to each class of animal. A tiger may have bigger eyes than a man for instance, but it doesn't follow that it has a bigger brain. But the tiger with big eyes is more cunning and brainy than a tiger with small eyes. Professor Laugier made this remarkable discovery when studying the habits of the fish known as the dorade or gilthead. There are two kinds of dorade, one pink and the other gray. The gray fish has a much smaller eye than the pink one. The scientist cut open a large number of these fish in his experiments and was struck by the fact that the large eyed fish always had the largest brain. He promptly followed up this discovery by testing other animals. He found, for example, that the little tree frog had a much larger eye than the larger marsh frog and had also a larger brain. He asserts that the same rule applies among higher animals.

Joaquin Miller In London.

Joaquin Miller is especially felicitous in his description of mountains and sea. His phrasing is strong and, though sometimes strained, vivid and true:

Afar the bright Sierras lie
A swaying line of snowy white,
A fringe of heaven hung in sight
Against the blue base of the sky.

And this is aptly descriptive of the ocean foaming on the shore:

The ocean's thin and hoary hair
Is trailed along the silvered sands.

After the late Lord Houghton climbed the attic stairs to Joaquin's room and found him sleeping under a buffalo robe the crude young westerner became a familiar figure in London social circles. He did not abandon his frontier costume, but invaded London drawing rooms with trousers tucked into his boots and his tawny hair and beard flowing uncut over a scarlet shirt. He afterward settled in Washington as a journalist and in 1887 removed to California.—Westminster Gazette.

Slander in Pantomime.

An amusing feud of two families in the County Mayo, the Sweeneys and the Caseys, was before the justices at Kiltimagh on summonses, Mr. McGinley, district inspector of constabulary, elucidating its incidents.

One of the Caseys having been ordered to wear spectacles, Sweeney, for ridicule, paraded before their house in a pair of tin goggles. Two Caseys next appeared. One dropped a purse, which the other seized and ran away with. This, said the inspector, was to indicate that a Sweeney had been sent to a reformatory for purse stealing.

Two Sweeneys retaliated in the street by one of them, with dramatic flourish, aiming a wooden gun at the other. This meant, said the inspector, that a Casey, a water bailiff, had been indicted for shooting at a man.—London Mail.

The Value of Accuracy.

We strive so much to know everything that we lose sight of the fact that accuracy is more important than knowledge since knowledge that is misty and fragile is a poor guide. But it is not only that what we know should be true as that the fact that accuracy is one of the most important elements of character. Vague ideas tend to make a weak character since character is only another name for truth. So that in the education of every man and child accuracy should be made a vital part. One of the tests for entrance to the Naval academy is, or was, an addition of a column of figures to ascertain the quantity of carelessness, if any, the applicant has in his character. It should be made an important item in our education to require accuracy.—Ohio State Journal.

Where Sherlock Holmes Lived.

The cattle show was regularly held in Baker street for many years before its removal to the Agricultural hall. Baker street takes its name from Sir Edward Baker, a friend of the Mr Portman who gave his name to Portman square and to whom the land belonged. The street has had its share of famous inhabitants. Bulwer Lytton was born and Mrs. Siddons died there. Pitt lived at its north end, and Henry Grattan, the orator, died there in 1820. And have you noticed how very small a street Baker street is?—London Globe.

Naturally.

"I wonder," said Mrs. Giddy, "why those inquisitive people across the street are always looking into our windows?"

"Maybe," suggested her sharp tongued husband, "it's to find out why you are always looking into theirs."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Keeps His Word.

"Yes, sir," said Jenkins; "Smithers is a man who keeps his word; but, then he has to."

"How is that?" asked Johnson.

"Because no one will take it."

An Old Firm.

"Who painted Subbubs' house?"

"He told me the name of the concern. I think he said it was done by Fitz & Startz."—Boston Transcript.

Of Course Not.

Mrs. Roby, the distinguished lady traveler and explorer, told some interesting stories of her experiences in central Africa.

In one of the villages through which Mrs. Roby passed a leopard which had killed several children was captured and appropriated by the chief, who kept it in his bed for several days. Mrs. Roby visited the chief and was shown the dead body of the leopard.

"Why do you keep it?" she asked.

"Because it is a king leopard," was the reply.

"What will you do with it?" was Mrs. Roby's next question.

To which the chief replied tersely, "Eat it."

"But it smells most horribly," Mrs. Roby objected.

"I shall not eat the smell," the chief assured her.

Pronouncing London Names.

It is by his pronunciation of the place names of London that a stranger may be detected. If he says Hol-born instead of "Hoborn," Mary-le-bone with the full pronunciation of each syllable or South-wark instead of "Suthark," we know at once that he is not of the town. And there is a pronunciation that is peculiar to cabmen and bus conductors, such as West-min-ister for Westminster, High park for Hyde park and, most peculiar of all, which the taxi driver has inherited from the old hansom cabman, the custom of calling the well known piazzas in Covent Garden the "pear'oches." And this reminds us that the garden, as salesmen and seedsmen call it, is invariably styled by the humbler persons "Common Garden."—London Standard.

A Perilous Business.

Taking young geese on the island of Rona, in the outermost Hebrides, is a most perilous business, though large captures are occasionally made. A crew recently returned with a bag of 2,200 birds, which found ready sale at Ness. The men were lowered over the face of the cliffs, which are 400 to 600 feet sheer to the sea. They then lassoed the birds out of their nests by means of a fishing rod with a noosed string at the end.

A Real Surprise Ahead.

"What are you doing, Polly?" asked her mother.

"I'm knitting, mumsie, dear," replied the young woman. "I heard George say the other day he was afraid he'd have to buy a new muffler for his car and I thought I'd knit him one as a sort of surprise."—Harper's Weekly.

Cynical.

"So you are on your way to propose to Miss Pickelle?"

"You bet! Wish me luck."

"Oh, I wish you luck all right, but it won't do you a bit of good. I feel sure she is going to accept you."—Houston Post.
